Declaring taxes – for individuals

On this page, you can find out who has to declare taxes, how to do so, and when tax returns have to be filed. You can also read about how to get a tax refund or pay any outstanding tax due.

You can file your tax return from 19 March 2024. Your tax return must reach the Swedish Tax Agency no later than 2 May 2024.

File a taxreturn via our e-service

If you only need to approve your tax return, you can simply log in to our e-service using your Swedish eID. Alternatively, if you have received some codes from us, you can use those instead. You will find your codes in the information and specification we sent with your tax return. If you need to change or add any details to your tax return, you must log in using your Swedish eID.

The opening hours are seen in the white box next to the yellow log-in button. If the e-services are closed you see the text Stängd (closed) in the white box.

Frequently asked questions about income tax returns

Why haven't I received my money?

If you are expecting a tax refund in April but have not yet received your money, it might be because you have not registered a bank account.

Alternatively, you might not meet all of the eligibility criteria for receiving a tax refund in April.

Further information is available in Swedish here:

- Tax refunds in April

Who needs to file a tax return?

If you have received a paper tax return form, you have to file it. In some cases, you have to file a tax return even if you haven't been sent one in the post. In 2024, you have to declare income you received in 2023.

You will most likely have to file a tax return if you fulfil any of the following criteria:

- You are living in Sweden permanently.
- You have recently moved to Sweden and plan to live here for more than one year.
- You have lived in Sweden previously.
- You have been employed by a company based in Sweden.
- You have been employed to carry out work in Sweden for a foreign company with a permanent establishment in Sweden.
- You have been employed to carry out work in Sweden for more than six months on behalf of a foreign company with no fixed establishment in Sweden.

Find out more about who has to file a tax return here:

- Do I need to file a tax return?

What do I need to declare?

If you live in Sweden, you must pay tax here on all of your income.

Most of your income will have been reported to the Swedish Tax Agency – for example, by your employer, your bank, or the Swedish Social Insurance Agency ("Försäkringskassan"). These details will therefore already have been entered in the income tax return form that we send you.

In some cases, you will need to enter some additional information – for example, if you are a business owner, or if you sold a residential property or shares during 2023.

If you receive foreign income, the general rule is that you must declare all of it in your Swedish tax return. Certain income might be tax exempt in Sweden due to Swedish regulations or the provisions of a tax convention. Even if you do not have to pay tax on income in Sweden, you still need to declare it in your income tax return.

From 1 January 2023, certain digital platform providers must submit details of rentals or sales to the Swedish Tax Agency. If you have sales or rental income, the same rules as before apply to declaring and paying tax.

Can I file my tax return digitally?

You can file your tax return digitally provided that you fulfil one of the following criteria:

- You have a Swedish e-identification, such as Bank-id.
- You received codes with your tax return and you wish to approve and file your return without making any changes

For instructions on how to file a tax return digitally, please click here:

- How to file your tax return

When will I receive my tax refund?

Once you have filed your tax return, we review all the details in it and calculate the tax you are due to pay. When we have completed this process, we will notify you of the final tax due. If you have registered a bank account with us, any tax refund you are due will be paid out automatically.

The payment of your tax refund is determined by when and how you filed your tax return. For more information, please click here:

I haven't received an income tax return form. What should I do?

If you have not received an income tax return form on paper by 15 April 2024 at the latest, but should have received one, please do one of the following:

- Order a paper income tax return form here (this e-service is only available in Swedish).
- Email the Swedish Tax Agency.
- Call the Swedish Tax Agency on 0771 567 567 (within Sweden) or on +46 8 564 851 60 from abroad.

File your tax return by 2 May at the latest

Your income tax return for the 2023 income year must be received by the Swedish Tax Agency by 2 May 2024 at the latest.

You can submit your tax return digitally by using Swedish e-identification, such as bank-id, or by using the codes listed in the annexe "Specifications: Income tax return 1" (in Swedish "Specifikation till Inkomstdeklaration 1").

Alternatively, you can submit your tax return using the paper form.

- How to file your tax return

Do you need more time?

If you will not be able to file your income tax return on time, you must apply for an extension by 2 May 2024. If you are granted an extension, the Swedish Tax Agency must receive your income tax return by 16 May at the latest.

You can apply for an extension via My pages (Mina sidor) using your Swedish e-identification.

Alternatively, you can call us on 0771 567 567 (or +46 8 564 851 60 from outside Sweden).

Video transcript

When you pay your taxes you contribute to make society possible. To ensure that you pay the correct amount of tax, you need to file a tax return.

File your income tax return no later than 2 May. The tax return form will be sent to you by regular mail or to your digital mailbox.

Most of your income will have been reported to the Swedish Tax Agency – by your employer, your bank, or the Swedish Social Insurance Agency. Such income is therefore pre-printed on the income tax return form you receive from us.

How to complete your income tax return

Start by making sure all of the pre-printed information is correct. If all of the information is correct and you do not want to make any changes or additions you can approve the tax return using Bank-id or the codes you received with your paper tax return form. You can do this easily by using your smart phone. You can also file your return in a text message, by telephone, via our e-service or by mailing us the paper form.

Have you sold a residential property or shares, or are you a business owner? If so, you yourself must make changes or additions to the information on your tax return form. In our e-service, we have prepared a form for you on which many items are already filled in.

If you are entitled to deduct expenses such as travel to and from work, you must enter this information on the tax return. Please familiarize yourself with the rules for deductions so that it is correct from the start.

Once you have filed your tax return we will review the information you have reported and calculate your final tax.

When we have completed the calculation you will receive your final tax assessment. Your tax assessment will show you whether you can expect a tax refund or if you owe tax arrears.

If you are to receive a tax refund it will be deposited directly into your bank account if you have reported the bank account to us.

If you have a balance to pay you can make your payment to the Swedish Tax Agency's bank giro account or by using Swish.
